European Insurance Law Review

The European Insurance Law Review is a double-blind peer-reviewed journal dedicated to publishing both theoretical and applied works on a wide range of topics in the law of insurance and risk, including issues at the intersection of law, insurance economics and finance, actuarial science and other related areas. Founded in 2002, it is published by the Association for Insurance Law of Serbia, one of the national chapters of the International Association of Insurance Law (AIDA). Entire material is published in Serbian language, while papers from the foreign authors are published both in Serbian and in one of the AIDA languages. Abstracts in the journal are always published in English language regardless of what is original language of the paper.
